Keith Olshove joins Old Mission Investment and Trust Companies as Senior Vice President and Managing Director of the Retirement Plan Investment and Consulting Group.

The Old Mission Investment and Trust Companies, with offices in Michigan and South Dakota, are pleased to announce that Keith Olshove has joined the firm as a Senior Vice President. Keith provides corporate and not-for-profit retirement plan consulting services providing plan sponsors comprehensive advice in the following areas: investment advisory services including investment selection, monitoring and performance reporting, plan design consulting, vendor searches and proposal coordination, fiduciary best practices, as well as employee education services.

Keith earned his bachelors degree in finance from Western Michigan University after transferring from Northwestern Michigan College and also completed the Cannon Financial Institute's Trust School at Pepperdine University in California. Keith began his career as an investment advisor with a national brokerage firm in 1987. In 1991 he joined the trust department Northwestern Bank as a Personal Trust Officer. Keith was responsible for the formation and development of the bank's 401(k) and qualified plan services department. Under his leadership, they grew from a single plan to the largest full service 401(k) provider in northern Michigan; serving over 80 businesses with 6000 employees and assets in excess of $300 million. As the department's mutual fund specialist his responsibilities included the screening and selection of mutual funds for use across the department in personal accounts as well as 401(k) plans.

In addition, Keith serves on the Investment Committee of Old Mission Investment Company, and will join the Trust and Investment Committee of Old Mission Trust Company providing guidance in terms of security selection, manager search and evaluation, and asset allocation assistance to our clients. As a member of the Old Mission Investment and Trust Companies, Keith continues to pursue educational opportunities in the areas of institutional consulting, investment trends, and qualified plan administration. He is a member of the American Society of Pension Professionals and Actuaries (ASPPA) and is currently preparing for his final examination to earn the retirement plan industry's respected Accredited Investment Fiduciary (AIF®) designation.

Keith is a long-term resident of the Traverse City. He is a charter member of the Traverse City Economics Club, a volunteer for the Junior Achievement educational outreach and appears regularly as a guest lecturer in the microeconomics classes at Northwestern Michigan College.

Old Mission Investment Company is a registered investment advisor under the Securities and Exchange Commission, providing employer retirement plan advisory services, investment management services, and wealth management solutions.
